SOCIETY

Message from the Dean

In English history, a woolsack was a cushion stuffed with wool and used on the seat of the Lord Chancellor as the presiding officer of the House of Lords.

The Woolsack Society was founded in 1966 to support Marquette University Law School's mission of educating excellent lawyers. The Law School and the Woolsack Society in partnership seek to achieve this objective by maintaining the school's tradition of academic excellence and by initiating new learning opportunities and challenges.

The late Dean of the Law School, Robert F. Boden, who was a founder and driving force of the Woolsack Society, described the organization as "having made an invaluable contribution to the growth and development of the Law School."

The Woolsack Society achieves this goal by helping to develop and funding ideas that foster the advancement of the Law School.

Like its namesake, the Woolsack Society is rooted in a proud tradition. It seeks to embody the highest standards of the legal profession.

For four decades the Woolsack Society has been one of the forces driving advances at Marquette University Law School.

Today it is the Law School's premier donor recognition society, and it is my hope that you will renew your giving at this level or consider giving at this level. Woolsack Society members, through their generous donations, provide critical annual support for the Law School in many different respects: student scholarships, fellowships for students, outreach programs, and faculty research.

The Woolsack Society recognizes individuals who donate $2,000 or more to the Law School on an annual basis or, in the case of recent alumni, an amount that is correlated to the year of graduation. It is not restricted to Marquette Law School alumni. In fact, the late Dean Howard B. Eisenberg was the first non-alumnus member of the Woolsack Society. I am pleased that several faculty members have joined me in continuing this tradition.

We invite Woolsack Society donors to a number of events at the Law School, such as the annual E. Harold Hallows Visiting Judicial Fellow Lecture and Dinner. But the primary role of the Woolsack Society membership is to help ensure that Marquette Law School has sufficient discretionary funds to continue to build upon both its historic strongholds and its recent gains.

In short, the Woolsack Society enables us collectively to advance the Law School. I hope that you will join us in the undertaking, in addition to giving your consideration to lending your financial support when called upon for the new building.

Please do not hesitate to call me at (414) 288-1955.

Joseph D. Kearney
Dean and Professor of Law

Your Gift

Your annual contribution to the Woolsack Society provides the fundamental financial resources for Marquette Law School to excel in today's challenging and ever-changing legal environment.

Your gift makes possible:

- ❖ Facility improvements
- ❖ State-of-the-art technological advances
- ❖ Student scholarships
- ❖ Career development programs
- ❖ Library resources
- ❖ Clinical programs
- ❖ Faculty research

Should your philanthropic goals be more definitive, we encourage you to contact the Law School to explore specific areas of investment, such as:

- ❖ Capital projects
- ❖ Conference and symposia sponsorship
- ❖ Scholarship
- ❖ Endowed professorships
- ❖ Faculty research funds
- ❖ Endowed chairs

Annual Recognition

An annual gift during our fiscal year, July 1, 2007 to June 30, 2008, of $2,000 or more qualifies you for Woolsack Society recognition.

- ❖ Recognition is open to all, including alumni, friends, parents, faculty, staff, students, and others.
- ❖ Any gift to the Law School counts toward recognition.
- ❖ Fulfillment on a previous pledge commitment counts toward recognition.

Ways to Give

- ❖ Cash, Check, Credit Card, or Stock

Please make checks payable to:
