What my Neighborhood Means to Me

My neighborhood means everything to me because it's a nice place and all the people there are nice. The land is okay, but it's not all that nice, at least it's clean. It also looks cool because people are nice there and I just like it. Some of the people there aren't nice though, they make a lot of noise and snitch on people too much, and it just bothers me.

I mean it makes me so mad, like one time I accidentally broke something of the neighbor's fence, then the next door neighbor of his said, "I'm going to tell him you did that," when I could of told him on my own. It annoyed me that they were going to snitch on me. What I see there is a lot of people there, like people going to work and people walking their dogs, people's pets outside of their houses, stuff like that.

I also see people getting locked out of their cars and sometimes their houses. Even my mom sometimes, it's kind of funny for someone to get locked out of their house or car, but in a way it kind of isn't because then you wont be able to go anywhere without your keys. If you were to live in my neighborhood I guarantee that you will like it.
