

Pedro Hurtado

10/17/07

What My Neighborhood Means To Me

This is what my neighborhood means to me. My neighborhood is like my second house or family. People from other neighborhoods may look it like another block but is not just another block is my street. When I go out side I see a lot of tight cars like low riders and new class of cars and there some Cadillac's. The tightest thing in my neighborhood are the dogs because they are always fun to play with them, there's many classes of dogs in my neighborhood like pit bulls, Dobermans, and boxers. The boxers are the aggressive ones and the other dogs they are friendly.

There are some activities in my street some people come and clean the street and the others would be doing something else in other neighborhoods and they always do this in Saturdays and Sundays. However, they don't help them because there's more elderly people living there so its very rare when they ask some of the people that live in my neighborhood if we would like to help them.

Some times I think that there's different cultures there's a lot but most of them don't talk the same language that we do they talk different languages because they are from different places like Africa, China, and Mexico.