Championship Game

Official Name: College Football Championship Game

Year Established: 2014

Stadium: There is a separate bidding process that allows any city or stadium to bid to host the championship game. Moreover, any one of the six playoff cities can bid to host the championship game in addition to the “bowl game” it will host. The exception is that cities may not host both a semifinal and championship game in the same season. The Mercedes-Benz Superdome in New Orleans, Louisiana will host the game for the 2019–2020 season, and the Hard Rock Stadium in Miami-South Florida will host the game for the 2020-2021 season. The Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis, Indiana will host the 2021–2022 season game. Los Angeles Stadium at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, California will host the 2022–2023 game, and NRG Stadium in Houston, Texas will host the 2023–2024 game.

“New Years Six”

Official Name: Playoff Semifinal

Year Established: 2014

Stadium: The semifinal games will rotate on an annual basis among six historical bowls: Rose Bowl, Cotton Bowl, Fiesta Bowl, Orange Bowl, Sugar Bowl, and Peach Bowl. The games will be played at the bowl’s respective location. The Peach Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl will host the semifinal games for the 2019-20 season. The Rose Bowl and the Sugar Bowl will host the 2020-21 semifinal games. The Cotton and Orange Bowls will host the games for the 2021-22 semifinal games. When a bowl game is not hosting a semifinal game, the site for that game will host its traditional bowl game.
