Facility Financing: Funded by a temporary one-cent sales tax approved by city voters in December 1993 as part of the Metropolitan Area Projects Plan (MAPS).

Facility Website

UPDATE: The Dodgers unveiled a COOP Beer Garden during the 2018 season.

NAMING RIGHTS: The stadium was originally named Southwestern Bell Park when it opened, but after five weeks, that name was withdrawn after public criticism. The stadium was then rebranded as Southwestern Bell Bricktown Ballpark. The park was again renamed in 2002 when it became known as SBC Bricktown Ballpark. In 2006, AT&T paid an undisclosed sum for ten years to rename the park A&T Bricktown Ballpark. The naming rights deal with AT&T ended after the team was sold to Mandalay in 2010, and the ballpark was renamed RedHawks Field at Bricktown. In April 2012, a naming rights agreement was entered into with Newcastle Casino, owned by the Chickasaw Nation, to change the stadium's name to Newcastle Field at Bricktown; however, the public was outraged when they found out the signage that was to be erected at the park had the word "Casino" in small, faint letters to the right just under the word "Newcastle." As a result, the stadium's name was once again changed, this time to Chickasaw Bricktown Ballpark.

Facility Website

UPDATE: The team will make numerous changes to Banner Island Ballpark stadium. First, a new Coors Light Cold Zone will be built, which will allow fans to be their own bartender choosing from up to 40 selections of beer. Several other additions, including an 108 foot long drink rail and Port City Saloon will give fans options for drink options while enjoying the game. Finally, the netting behind home plate will be extended to the beginning of both dugouts.

NAMING RIGHTS: The City of Stockton owns the naming rights of the ballpark and has been trying to find a naming-rights sponsor since the ballpark opened. The name "Banner Island Ballpark" is actually an unofficial name that is used among fans and the administration of the Stockton Ports. Until the rights are sold, the stadium is officially known as the Stockton Ballpark.
