ARENA FOOTBALL LEAGUE (AFL)

LEAGUE UPDATE: Arena Football is the highest-level professional indoor football league and the second longest running professional football league, after the National Football League, in the United States.

After the 2016 season, the AFL lost three teams and added one expansion team. The KISS, Steel, and Predators have ceased operations. The Arizona Rattlers moved to the Indoor Football League. The Baltimore Brigade were added as an expansion team.

UPDATE: It was announced in December 2016 that the Quicken Loans Arena will receive a $140 million upgrade. The Cleveland Cavaliers and taxpayers would split the cost of the upgrades without any increase in taxes. The existing taxes on hotels and Quicken Loans Arena tickets would pay most of the public share in financing. The construction should be finished by 2020 and the arena will remain open during construction.

In June of 2018, the Quicken Loans Arena closed down for the summer to work on renovations that have been dubbed, “the Q Transformation.”

NAMING RIGHTS: In 2005, after purchasing the Cleveland Cavaliers, Dan Gilbert paid an unspecified amount to remodel the arena and change its name from Gund Arena to Quicken Loans Arena (AKA the Q Arena).

The Washington Valor won the ArenaBowl XXXI by beating the Baltimore Brigade, 69-55.

NAMING RIGHTS:

Verizon Wireless did not renew its naming rights deal in 2018. Capital One made a ten-year, $100 million deal for the naming rights of the home of the Washington Wizards and Washington Capitals.

AMERICAN ARENA LEAGUE (AAL)

LEAGUE UPDATE: The league launched after the dissolution of the American Indoor Football League. It's first season was the 2017 season.

The league has also formed an alliance with the Can-Am Indoor Football League to further advance each league's goals and to promote the arena/indoor football industry. Both leagues plan to share a similar concept and business plan and will continue to run independently of each other. Both leagues will participate in the Arena Football Challenge Cup at the completion of the season. The Arena Football Challenge Cup is open to all professional arena/indoor football leagues, with each league champion playing against each other. At the end of the 2017 season, APF and the Can-Am Indoor Football League merged to create the American Arena League.

UPDATE: The Calgary Flames announced plans for a combined NHL-CFL stadium. The stadium would cost approximately $900 million. The plan calls for the stadium to be funded through a $250 million ticket tax, a $240 million community revitalization levy, $200 million from Calgary Flames, and $200 million from city taxpayers. A study conducted by the city expects actual costs to reach $1.8 billion.

The Flames plan for a new arena was approved, however the deal leaves out a new stadium for the Stampeders. Calgary City Council voted in favor of a new arena in Victoria Park. If Calgary Flames Entertainment moves forward with the development of a new arena, the Flames will likely go back to city council to get a plan approved to replace McMahon Stadium. As of now there are no further updates about a new stadium for the Stampeders.

NAMING RIGHTS: The stadium was constructed on the University of Alberta (Calgary) campus. It is named after Calgary residents Frank McMahon and his brother, George McMahon. They donated C$300,000 to the school and guaranteed the balance of the money for the stadium's original construction.

SUPREME INDOOR FOOTBALL (SIF)

LEAGUE UPDATE: The Supreme Indoor Football league (SIF) is the creation of the Cape Fear Heroes and was initially supposed to launch in 2015. The SIF was going to be apart of the Indoor Football Alliance with the revived Continental Indoor Football League (CIFL). The SIF planned to begin play in 2016, however the revival of the CIFL never materialized and the league had trouble finding teams to join. The league then relaunched in 2017.

The league currently has seven teams, Gladiators, Bulls, Heroes, M.O.B., Dragons, Ravens, and Torch.
