Arena: US Airways Center

Date Built: 1992

Facility Cost ($/Mil): $90

Percentage of Arena Publicly Financed: 39%

Facility Financing: The City of Phoenix contributed $35 million, $28 million of which went towards arena construction and $7 million toward the land. The Phoenix Suns, who also use the arena, contributed $55 million. The city has a 30-year commitment from the Suns to repay a portion of the contribution at $500,000 per year, with an annual 3% increase. The city will also receive 40% of revenue from luxury boxes and advertising.

Arena: Allstate Arena

Date Built: 1980

Facility Cost ($/Mil): $19

Percentage of Arena Publicly Financed: N/A

Facility Financing: The City of Rosemont issued $19 million in bonds to finance the cost of the arena with exclusive contracts with several entities.

Facility Website

UPDATE: Allstate Arena has now gone green. In 2010, Allstate Arena recycled over 70 tons of cardboard, aluminum, glass, plastic and paper waste generated from sporting and other events in the arena.

The Chicago Rush clinched a playoff berth in early July 2011 and owners are hopeful that the team's success will bring sponsorship and fans to Allstate Arena. Also, new WNBA President Laurel Richie stated that Allstate Arena could serve as an example for marketing opportunities for businesses and the WNBA, as Allstate Arena is also home to the WNBA team the Chicago Sky.

NAMING RIGHTS: In 1999, Allstate insurance paid $20 million to remodel the Rosemont Horizon and purchase the naming rights to the arena.

Arena: American Airlines Center

Date Built: 2001

Facility Cost ($/Mil): $420

Percentage of Arena Publicly Financed: 50%

Facility Financing: Half of the arena financing came from the Dallas Mavericks and the Dallas Stars, who also share the arena. The other half came from public financing.

Facility Website

UPDATE: The American Airlines Center remains one of the most technologically advanced venues in the world. In 2011, the center honored M S Benbow & Associates with a Corporate Partnership Award for the wireless coverage that the company makes available to American Airlines Center guests.

On March 9, 2011, the American Airlines Center and Ticketmaster announced that fans would now have an on-site, self-service option for purchasing and picking up tickets for sporting and other special events held at the American Airlines Center. The American Airlines Center is the first venue in North Texas to use Ticketmaster's new transactional kiosk, which is designed to serve as a direct extension of the arena's box office.

NAMING RIGHTS: American Airlines is currently paying $195 million over 30 years for the naming rights to the arena, which expire in 2031.

Arena: Bradley Center

Date Built: 1988

Facility Cost ($/Mil): $90

Percentage of Arena Publicly Financed: 0%

Facility Financing: The arena was financed through a donation by the Pettit family as a gift to the people of Wisconsin and in memory of Harry Lynde Bradley.

Facility Website

UPDATE: The Milwaukee Mustangs opened the 2011 season with a new team name. The Mustangs were previously called the Milwaukee Iron. This rebranding is intended to help the team's marketing efforts, which have hampered the team in the past.

The Bradley Center is eyeing the current NBA labor negotiations very closely. The Milwaukee Bucks are the most important tenant of the Bradley Center. A lengthy lockout that affects the playing of the 2011/2012 season could severely hurt the revenue-starved Bradley Center.

NAMING RIGHTS: The Pettits donated the money for the Bradley Center. The donation was conditioned on the fact that the facility would always be named the Bradley Center after Jane Bradley Pettit's father, Harry Lynde Bradley.

Arena: Amway Center

Date Built: 2010

Facility Cost ($/Mil): $480

Percentage of Arena Publicly Financed: 87.5%

Facility Financing: The NBA's Orlando Magic, which also calls the Amway Center home, contributed $50 million. Richard Devos, owner of the Orlando Magic contributed another $10 million. The rest was publicly financed.

Facility Website

UPDATE: For the 2011 season the Predators moved into the brand new Amway Center, which has already been awarded the arena LEED Gold certification for its sustainable design and construction methods.

NAMING RIGHTS: Amway—as part of their naming rights agreement with Amway Arena—had first right of refusal for the naming rights of the new facility. Amway exercised its option and signed a 10-year, $40 million agreement to become the name sponsor of the new Amway Center.

Stadium: Rentschler Field

Date Built: 2003

Facility Cost ($/Mil): $91.2

Percentage of Stadium Publicly Financed: Unspecified percentage but the state has invested over $92 million in the stadium to attract the best events and concerts to the state.

Facility Financing: The facility is the result of teamwork and dedication between the state's Office of Policy and Management, the town of East Hartford, United Technologies Corporation and the assistance from numerous public and private sector organizations. The state of Connecticut owns the stadium.

Facility Website

UPDATE: In April 2011, the turf at Rentschler Field was replaced. After eight seasons of regular wear and tear on the football field from being used by the University of Connecticut Huskies NCAA football team as well as the Colonials, the state of Connecticut and the University of Connecticut decided that it was time for an upgrade.

NAMING RIGHTS: Rentschler Field was originally the name of the company airfield for Pratt & Whitney that formerly occupied the site. The airfield was named after Frederick Brant Rentschler and they kept the name for the stadium.
