Marquette Law School Poll of Wisconsin voters finds very close race between Harris and Trump and Democratic enthusiasm for voting in presidential race now matching Republican levels

Poll also finds Baldwin holding 7-point lead over Hovde in U.S. Senate race, third-party candidates for president fading, and overall opinions of Harris improving since pre-candidacy surveys

MILWAUKEE – A new Marquette Law School Poll survey of Wisconsin voters finds former President Donald Trump with 50% and Vice President Kamala Harris with 49% among registered voters in a head-to-head matchup in the race for president. Among likely voters, Harris is the choice of 50% and Trump the choice of 49%. These results include initially undecided voters who were then asked whom they would vote for if they had to choose.

In June, before the debate between President Joe Biden and Trump and with Biden as the Democratic candidate, Biden and Trump each received 50% among Wisconsin registered voters, while Biden received 51% and Trump 49% among likely voters.

In a multicandidate race, Harris, a Democrat, is the choice of 45% and Trump, a Republican, 43%. Robert F. Kennedy Jr. receives 8%, Libertarian Chase Oliver 1%, Green Party candidate Jill Stein 1%, Constitution Party candidate Randall Terry <0.5%, and independent Cornel West <0.5%, among registered voters. Among likely voters, it is Harris 46%, Trump 45%, Kennedy 6%, Oliver 1%, Stein 1%, Terry <0.5%, and West <0.5%.

In the U.S. Senate race, Democratic Sen. Tammy Baldwin is supported by 53% to Republican Eric Hovde's 46% among registered voters. Among likely voters, Baldwin receives 52% and Hovde receives 47%. These results include initially undecided voters who were then asked whom they would vote for if they had to choose. On the initial question, before that "if you had to choose" follow-up, Baldwin receives 47%, Hovde 39%, and 14% say they are undecided, among registered voters.

When the Senate ballot includes independent candidates, Baldwin receives 50%, Hovde receives 44%, Phil Anderson (the "Disrupt the Corruption" party candidate) receives 2% and Thomas Leager, of the "America First" party, receives 2%, among registered voters. Among likely voters, Baldwin receives 51% and Hovde 45%, with 2% each for Anderson and Leager.

The survey was conducted July 24-Aug. 1, 2024, interviewing 877 Wisconsin registered voters, with a margin of error of +/-4.6 percentage points. The poll included 801 likely voters, with a margin of error of +/-4.8 percentage points. (All results are stated as percentages.)

While the race for president remains very close in Wisconsin, when asked who they think is likely to win in November, 51% say Trump will definitely or probably win, while 39% say Harris will definitely or probably win and 11% say they don't know.

The perceived chances of Biden winning, had he stayed in the race, are lower than the perceived chances with Harris as the candidate. Asked about the winner between Biden and Trump, 20% say Biden would definitely or probably win, while 69% say Trump would win.

A substantial majority (79%) say Biden should have withdrawn from the race, while 15% say he should have continued as the Democratic nominee. Among Democrats, 91% say Biden should have withdrawn.

Asked whom they would have voted for if Biden remained in the race, 42% say Biden, 47% say Trump, and 10% say they don't know.

A majority (58%) say Biden should not resign but should serve out his term as president, while 33% say he should resign and 9% say they don't know.

Democrats are overwhelmingly satisfied with Harris as the nominee, with 92% very or somewhat satisfied with her as the nominee and 7% very or somewhat dissatisfied.

The poll was completed before she secured the nomination through a virtual roll call of delegates on Aug. 2. A majority (54%) of Democrats think the party should settle on a nominee before the convention, while almost a third (32%) say there should be an open convention and 13% don't know.

Favorability to candidates

Harris is seen in this survey favorably by 41% and unfavorably by 53% of registered voters, with 6% saying they don't know enough about her to have an opinion. When this question was last asked about Harris in June 2022, 36% had a favorable opinion and 49% had an unfavorable view, with 15% who did not have an opinion of her.

Minnesota Gov. Tim Walz was chosen as the Democratic nominee for vice president after the poll was completed.

In this survey, following the July 13 assassination attempt against Trump and the Republican National Convention in Milwaukee July 15-18, favorability toward Trump in Wisconsin rose to 44%, with 54% unfavorable and 2% without an opinion. In June, his favorability was 41%, with 57% unfavorable and 2% lacking an opinion.

Favorability toward Biden was unchanged from June, following his withdrawal from the presidential race, remaining at 40% favorable, while his unfavorable rating declined one percentage point to 57%.

Those with unfavorable opinions of both candidates—the so-called “double haters”—declined slightly in July. For Biden and Trump, 17% were unfavorable to both in June. That group declined to 14% in July. For Harris and Trump, 11% have an unfavorable view of both in July.

Republican vice-presidential nominee JD Vance is seen favorably by 31% and unfavorably by 41%, with 29% saying they haven't heard enough or don't know. Vance is seen much more favorably by Republicans, but is viewed unfavorably by independents and especially Democrats, as shown in Table 1. Substantial percentages of each partisan group, and especially independents, say they have not yet formed an opinion of Vance.

Vance is seen as an excellent pick for the vice-presidential slot by 17%, as a good choice by 25%, as a fair choice by 10%, and as a poor selection by 35%, with 14% who say they don't know. More than three-quarters of Republicans rate the choice of Vance as excellent or good, while independents are more divided and more than two-thirds of Democrats rate it poor, as shown in Table 2.

Enthusiasm and likelihood of voting

Enthusiasm about voting in November increased sharply from June to July, as shown in Table 4. In the current survey, 61% say they are very enthusiastic about voting, a substantial increase from 46% in June. This was the first substantial movement in enthusiasm in 2024, with fewer than 50% in all prior Marquette Law School Poll surveys of Wisconsin voters in 2024 saying they were very enthusiastic. For comparison, in the previous presidential cycle in early August 2020, 62% were very enthusiastic, basically the same level as now matched for the first time in 2024, but such enthusiasm was also seen in earlier Marquette Law School Poll surveys in 2020, unlike this year.

Question: (2020) How enthusiastic are you about voting in this November's elections? Would you say you are very, somewhat, not too, or not at all enthusiastic?

Enthusiasm has increased primarily among Democrats and, to a lesser degree, among independents and Republicans. Republicans had a substantial enthusiasm advantage over Democrats in previous polls in 2024, but that has been mostly erased now, as shown in Table 5.

Those who are very enthusiastic give Trump a slight edge over Harris, while those somewhat enthusiastic give Harris an even slighter edge. Those who are not too enthusiastic and those not at all enthusiastic give Harris larger margins, as shown in Table 6.

Question: How enthusiastic are you about voting in the elections in November 2024 for president and other offices? Would you say you are very, somewhat, not too, or not at all enthusiastic?

In June, with Biden as the Democratic candidate, this enthusiasm gap was much more pronounced, as shown in Table 7. At that time, Trump held a larger margin with the very enthusiastic than he now holds over Harris among that group, and Biden had larger margins over Trump with all other enthusiasm groups than Harris now holds.

Characteristics of Harris, Trump, and Biden

The replacement of Biden by Harris has changed the relative perceptions of the candidates, with Harris having different perceived traits from Biden. Table 8 shows which phrases describe Harris, Trump, and Biden. The Biden numbers are from the June poll while Harris and Trump perceptions are from July, the new survey.

Question: How well does each of the following phrases describe (Kamala Harris)(Donald Trump)(Joe Biden)?

Respondents were also asked if Harris and Trump have the communication skills to succeed as president. For Harris, 52% say she does have the skills needed and 39% say she does not, while 9% say they don't know. For Trump, 49% say he has the communication skills to succeed as president, while 49% say he does not and 1% say they don't know. This has not been asked about Biden.

With respect to his New York criminal trial in May, 52% say Trump was guilty as the jury found, while 36% say he is not guilty and the jury made the wrong ruling. Eleven percent don't know.

Trump is scheduled to be sentenced in September. In July, 28% say he should be given no penalty at all, 11% say a fine only, 11% say probation without jail, 38% say he should be sentenced to jail, and 12% don't know.

Issues in the presidential campaign

Table 9 shows which candidate it is thought would do a better job on each of eight issues. Trump is seen as better on immigration and border security, the Israel-Hamas war, and the economy, and holds a slight edge on handling foreign relations. Harris is seen as better on abortion policy, health care, ensuring fair and accurate elections, and on Medicare and Social Security.

Between 8% and 20% say both candidates would be about the same or that neither would be good on each issue.

Question: Do you think Kamala Harris or Donald Trump would do a better job handling each of the following issues, they are both about the same or would neither be good on the issue?

Most important issues

Respondents were asked which of the eight issues would be most important for deciding their vote. The economy is the top-rated issue, followed by abortion policy, and immigration, with Medicare and Social Security as fourth most important, as shown in Table 10.

Table 3: Most important issue

Marquette Law School Poll, Wisconsin survey, July 24-Aug. 1, 2024

Question: Which one of the following issues will be MOST important in deciding your vote for president?

Partisans differ on the most important issues, as shown in Table 11. Republicans are much more likely to rank the economy and immigration as most important, while placing little weight on any of the other issues. Independents rank the economy as most important with no other issue reaching double digits. Democrats put abortion policy as their top concern, followed by Medicare and Social Security with the economy third. Only 1% of Democrats rank immigration as their top issue concern, as do 7% of independents.

Question: Which one of the following issues will be MOST important in deciding your vote for president?

Support for deporting immigrants who are in the U.S. illegally varies depending on the framing of the issue. A random half-sample of the survey was asked:

Do you favor or oppose deporting immigrants who are living in the United States illegally back to their home countries?

With this wording, 64% favor deportation and 34% are opposed, with 2% who say they don't know.

The other half-sample was asked:

Do you favor or oppose deporting immigrants who are living in the United States illegally back to their home countries even if they have lived here for a number of years, have jobs, and no criminal record?

When worded this way, 44% favor deportations and 55% are opposed, with a half-percent who don't know.

Two-thirds of registered voters say abortion should be legal in all or most cases. and one third say it should be illegal in all or most cases. This has changed little since Roe v. Wade was overturned in June 2022. The full trend is shown in Table 12.

Multicandidate vote trends

The trend in vote preference including independent and third-party candidates is shown in Table 13. Oliver was not included prior to the June poll and Terry appears for the first time in July. The total third-party vote has declined in the poll's surveys, from 22% in January to 10% now, with Kennedy falling from 16% to 8% over that time among registered voters.

Note: Prior to July the vote choice asked about Joe Biden.

In the multicandidate ballot test in July, Kennedy takes more votes from Republicans (10%) than from Democrats (4%).

Independent voters are more drawn to the third-party candidates than are Republican or Democratic voters. Kennedy receives 21% from independents, Oliver 3%, Stein 2%, Terry <0.5%, and West 1%. This remains a minority of independent voters; among independents in the multicandidate race, Trump receives 38% and Harris 35%.

These results are shown in Table 14.

Senate vote by party identification

As shown in Table 15, among registered voters who identify as Democrats (or who lean), Baldwin receives 98% and Hovde 2%. Among Republicans, Hovde holds 88%, while Baldwin takes 11%. Independents favor Baldwin by 52% to Hovde's 46%.

With likely voters, partisan loyalty is slightly higher for both parties, but independents favor Hovde with 50% and 48% for Baldwin

Senate candidate favorability

In the current survey, Baldwin's favorable rating is 44% and her unfavorable rating is also 44%, with 12% saying they don't know enough about her. Since January, Baldwin's favorable rating has increased two points and her unfavorable has decreased by one percentage point.

Hovde is seen favorably by 24% and unfavorably by 37%, with 38% who haven't heard enough. The number of those without an opinion of Hovde has declined from 82% in January to 38% in July. In that time, his favorable rating has increased by 17 percentage points and his unfavorable by 28 percentage points.

These favorability trends are shown in Table 17.
